Tonight's Speaker

Cassandra Keyes

Cassandra Keyes is a Registered Professional Archaeologist based in San Cristobal, New Mexico. She holds a master's degree in Public Archaeology from the University of New Mexico and specializes in Early Archaic lithic technology from the Southwest. Cassandra has extensive field experience across the Intermountain West and has worked for a variety of contract firms and land management agencies over the last 12 years. She joined the board of the Taos Archaeological Society early in 2021 and is currently the Fieldwork Committee Co-Chair. Cassandra will be talking about recent collaborations between the Taos Archaeological Society (TAS) and Bureau of Land Management archaeologists in the survey and documentation of the Newman Dome lithic procurement site on the Taos Plateau. Her talk will focus on the geologic history and indigenous use of the dome, the results of the TAS/BLM fieldwork, and future research goals for the site, specifically as they relate to public outreach and education.

TAS will be holding the yearly elections to elect officers. We need to replace at least 1 officer that will be resigning. We have a full agenda in 2022 including hosting the Annual Meeting of ASNM in May. The TAS Officers will accept nominations beginning December 20, 2021 until January 10, 2022. After a slate of nominees is generated, the TAS membership will vote electronically between January 10, 2022 and January 30, 2022 to confirm the Officers. We expect the TAS Officers will meet each month by ZOOM until September 2022. You can nominate someone or yourself at taoscuba@hotmail.com.

On September 25 and 26 TAS volunteers, in partnership with Natalie Sanford from the Bureau of Land Management Taos Field Office, began preliminary survey and artifact documentation of the Newman Dome archaeological site. This is planned as a collaborative multi-year project between TAS and the BLM and is expected to continue next September. The TAS volunteers included Cassandra Keyes (Newman Dome Subcommittee Chairperson), Tim Viereck, Joel Clark, and Bob and Sara Blair. Natalie Sanford was Field Supervisor.

Newman Dome was used by indigenous groups for thousands of years as a lithic procurement site. The material that these folks were collecting is known as dacite- a black volcanic rock that is similar to basalt- which they used for making projectile points and other tools.

The first day of fieldwork was dedicated to pedestrian survey, artifact identification, and flagging of tools. Over 50 tools were identified and flagged and were recorded on the second day. Over the course of the weekend, volunteers not only learned how to identify bifacially worked artifacts, various projectile point types, and ground stone artifacts, but also learned how to measure, describe, and photograph artifacts according to scientific standards!

Dr. Steve Shackley, professor emeritus of UC-Berkley, joined the group on Sunday to provide an overview of the geologic history of the Taos Plateau and the formation of Newman's Dome with an emphasis on why this particular feature was targeted for tool stone.

The BLM will begin working on an initial report during the winter.

Very many thanks to Bob and Sara Blair for providing food for the crew and for organizing first aid and logistical support and to Mark Henderson for providing equipment.

Message for the Members of TAS:

Hope you are having a great winter and all getting vaccinations so we can begin to have face to face meetings as soon as possible. As you are probably beginning to realize vaccinations will be REQUIRED to participate in TAS activities for 2022. Not because of our mandates, but because of facilities and service providers we would like to use for future activities. As of now, we will continue to have Zoom lectures until May 2022.

Please go to You Tube and Enter Taos Archaeological Society for recorded Lectures you may have missed.

Until then, stay healthy and safe,

Thank you and we will see you all soon.

The TAS Officers

An effort is currently underway to build a historical timeline of events in the history of the Taos Archaeological Society. We need your help if you have records that date in the period September 1999 through February 2014. These dates range between the last completed history for the society and the earliest records archived on our web site.

The Taos Archaeological Society has operated for 34 years. At present documents we have accessible cover under 60 percent of that time. Old bulletins, meeting minutes, financial statements, member lists and other communications of the society will assist in this effort. Please do help if you can. You can send records directly to Paul McGuff (pmcguff@aol.com).

February 21, 2022

Dr. Hayward F. Franklin

Hayward has worked with many archaeological projects in Arizona and New Mexico.

His Ph.D. dissertation (University of Arizona) involved the excavation and analysis of a major Hohokam-Salado site in the San Pedro Valley. He then served as a National Park Service Interpretive Ranger at Mesa Verde National Park.

Between 1974 and 1980 he directed the ceramics lab at Salmon Ruin, a large Chaco culture pueblo near Bloomfield, NM. Concurrently, he was Assistant Professor at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

After a year as a student at Albuquerque T-VI in 1980, he was hired as an instructor in Computer Programming, and remained on the faculty until his retirement from CNM in 2005. Computer skills included programming and data processing.

In a separate but "parallel" career, Hayward analyzed and wrote about ceramics for a number of major contract projects, most of them connected with Office of Contract Archaeology at the University of New Mexico.

Since his retirement from teaching, he has been engaged in an intensive analysis of Pottery Mound glazeware ceramics. As a Research Associate at the Maxwell Museum, he works closely with David Phillips in his continuing research. This research has produced four reports on Pottery Mound dating and ceramic history. His interest in PIV glazeware pottery has led to several recent research projects involving data from other sites in the Middle Rio Grande region.

Hayward is a member of SAA, Albuquerque Archaeological Society, and serves on the Board of Trustees of the Archaeological Society of New Mexico. He is also a member of the Society for American Archaeology, Arizona Archaeological and Historical Society, New Mexico State Archaeological Society, Albuquerque Archaeological Society. He is a co-editor of the journal Pottery Southwest. Hayward gives instruction in prehistoric ceramics for SiteWatch, NMAC, and is a speaker at archaeological societies in the Albuquerque area.

TOPIC

The subject of the talk deals with establishing a comprehensive chronology for Kuaua Pueblo. Situated near Bernalillo, this major PIV (Classic) period site contained about 900 ground floor rooms, and an unknown number of second story rooms. Unfortunately, due to wholesale hurried excavations in the late 1930s and subsequent erosion of the fragile adobe walls, the site today is maybe not impressive. Chaco Canyon walls were carefully laid up with tabular sandstone!

A limited testing project about five years ago used test squares around the perimeter of most of the site in order to determine the extent of artifact distribution as caused by discard and erosion. The ceramic collection from these tests was analyzed for pottery type by me and a trained crew of volunteers at the Coronado State Historic Site. Over 2000 sherds yielded a good picture of the overall length of occupation, and the sequence of construction of three plaza roomblocks.

Exciting speakers coming all next year in 2022!!!! Watch for the bulletins beginning again in January online at taosarch.org for announcements!!!!
